

An Introduction to the DGMT

The goal of the DGMT is the promotion of membrane technology and its application.

With the establishment of the DGMT in the year 2000, a forum for communication and cooperation for the entire field of membrane technology was created.

The association of members from all areas of the membrane industry promotes an efficient and comprehensive network infrastructure, thus using synergies for the further development of this technology.

Through selective presentation of membrane technology in external appearances and organized forums, the DGMT makes an important contribution towards the creation of new application fields. The possibility for a meaningful exchange between our members also helps to optimize existing processes and applications.

Membership Structure:

Initiative

The organizational structure of the DGMT allows each member to contribute personally and thus, together with the other members, shape the image of membrane technology. This has resulted in the commitment of each individual within a broad spectrum of knowledge, information and contacts:

- Continuing education (seminars, conferences, training courses)
- Communication (round table discussions, member meetings)
- Information (newsletter "Ticker", website, references)
- Service (professionally oriented placement, trade fair presence)
- Specialized technical groups

Cooperation in the organization thus enables economic success, as well as the personal and professional development of all DGMT members in the interest of membrane technology.

Network

To continue to promote the positive development of membrane technology in recent decades, the DGMT has consistently invested in the expansion of networks:

- Implementation of joint events with industry related specialists in the field
- Workshops (e. g. membrane and water, membrane and production, membrane and gas)
- Cooperation with other membrane associations from neighboring European countries to promote international exchanges, as well as the development of new ideas and prospects.

In addition, the DGMT acts as a neutral intermediary between the users of membrane processes and membrane technology companies.
